2011	35	1	Winter 2010/11	"The Bulletin's Back." Message from Editor Ken Jensen. After 35 yearas the newsletter as a new name "Bulletin." like the Pacific Coast bulletins of the past. Photo of the front of a PCC bulletin and requests for input. Now contracted with Arctic Printing to produce the bulletin at a lesser cost.

2011	35	1	Winter 2010/11	Editors Notes: From PCC Bulletin 1922: As readers of the Bulletin may recall, two pigs were installed at the Briquet Plant several months ago to dispose of left-over food. One became the special care of Mr. Gorst, and the other of Mr. Calkins. As it happened both pigs were red in color and about the same size—virtually the only way to tell them apart being the different colored ribbons tied about their necks. On Saturday, Feb. 11, one of the pigs died following a surgical operation. Mr. Gorst declares that when he attempted to console Supt. Calkins over the loss of his pig he was deeply shocked to hear Mr. Calkins declare: "Why, it was your pig that died, not mine." Supt. Calkins and Mr. Gorst each tried to convince the other of his error, but when the Bulletin went to press no decision had been made.
2011	35	1	Winter 2010/11	Errata Which is a fancy word for Oops. In last issue's Diamond Junction column on the Lawson Mine, I got a couple of dates mixed up. Eugene Lawson sold the Lawson Mine to the Pacific Coast Coal Company in 1898, not during 1903-1904 when Lawson, on behalf of the Pacific Coast Coal Company, brokered a $1.1 million deal to sell the Black Diamond Coal Company's assets—its mines, land, the entire town—to his employer. Thanks Bill Kombol for keeping me on my toes

2011	35	2	Spring 2011	Message from Editor Ken Jensen. A Pacific Coast Coal brochure described Lake Sawyer in a 1921 brochure as "A Pleasure Jaunt Over the Road to Success." Note of Lake Sawyer's annex to Black Diamond in 1998. Thanks for input for stories from Craig Goodwin, Bill Komboll, Rebecca Olness, Ron Olness, Ted Strand.
2011	35	2	Spring 2011	OUT HERE IN THE GREAT NORTHWEST, almost every day in the year is ideal for vacation trips. Consequently there are many who now make the most of the advantages right at hand by taking a vacation close to home. No need for a resident of Burnett to seek the rugged fastnesses of a mountain range in a distant state—not with majestic Mt. Rainier within a stone's throw. Black Diamond people don't need the lure of placid lakes or rushing mountain torrents— with Lake Sawyer and Green River Gorge in their very dooryards. Fishing and hunting, or a woodland paradise for the camper, is there for the asking of every Newcastle citizen.
2011	35	2	Spring 2011	Errata: In the last issue we incorrectly identified the Zumek brothers. The brothers are Tom (not Louis), Joe, and Frank.

Photos of the church fire, the fire truck, the church before it burned.
2012	36	2	Spring 2012	Message from the Editor Ken Jensen. Fires were a scary part of life. Focus of this newsletter. At one time the hose cart was located at the corner of the Frederickson's residence and the other between the barber shop and drug store. Two gongs would sound a general alarm. Fire District 17 was formed in 1943. Quotes from Carl Steiert about the fire.
2012	36	2	Spring 2012	ONE MISHAP MARRED the otherwise perfect Fourth of July celebration at Black Diamond. This happened about midnight when fire was discovered in the house occupied by Mrs. G. L. Eten and family. The family was at the dance at the time, and before the neighbors were aroused, the house was a mass of flames and beyond saving. What caused the fire is not known. The house and contents were a total loss.

2012	36	4	Fall 2012	Story of early Labor Day: THE FORENOON WAS DEVOTED largely to the youngsters and their races. Mixed in with these events were a few special stunts such as the fat man's race, the plump ladies' race, the rooster race, and the ladies' nail driving contest, etc. Sam Downey took first money in the fat man's race. According to reports W.A. Wilson and J.A. Richie entered this event. They finished so far in the rear that spectators figured this was merely another two-man event. The rooster, released in a circle of waiting ladies, never had a chance on earth. He broke through the first guard, ran under tables and benches, flew over fences, but was finally nabbed in Elmer Fitzgerald's backyard.

2013	37	3	Summer 2013	Editors Message Ken Jensen: Forever etched in Granite - tribute to Coal Miners. In this issue we look at not only the men who lost their lives in the mines, but the survivors—women like Louise Fabre Jouila Persyn Bailleul who lost three husbands to coal mining-related accidents and maladies, her second husband being Julius Persyn, who perished in the 1910 Lawson Mine explosion. And Lily English and sons Jim and Jerry, who lost a husband and father, Harry English, in a cave-in at Landsburg in 1954. And Dorothy Haag, who lost a grandfather she never really knew, Frank Bussey, in a 1920 Mine 11 accident along with 3 other miners. Every man on the granite wall has a story—some of which we’ve written about were in past issues; some whose stories are completely unknown ... at least for now. Men like Charles P Moroni, 72, a timberman at the New Black Diamond Mine near Maple Valley, who stepped in front of a loaded coal car in 1939; or Pete Pasquini, a 49-year-old miner with the Strain Coal Co. in Black Diamond who was killed when two loaded coal cars broke free in 1938; or Daniel Carey, 38, who was instantly killed by a fall of rock in the Franklin Gem Mine in 1942; or Charles Barnett, 43, who died as the result of injuries when a chunk of coal broke free, rolling down the slope and striking him in the face at the New Black Diamond Mine in 1937; or George F. Jones, a 28-year-old rope rider who fell down the slope of Mine 6 near Black Diamond in 1936

2013	37	3	Summer 2013	Landsburg Mine. Little-known miners' memorial is the site of tragedies in 1954 and 1955. Story of the tragedies and family of Harry J. English who was killed at Landsburg. Photo: Lily English clasps the hands of James, at left, and Jerry as they wait for word from the Landsburg Mine. The mother and her boys have shown great courage throughout the ordeal since the accident happened. (Seattle P-I, January 9, 19. Just a little over one year later on January 29, 1955, tragedy would strike again as 4 more miners perished in yet another cave-in at the Landsburg Mine: Nathan D. Russell of Carbonado, Frank Stebly of Black Diamond, Louis Vaiente of Ravensdale, and John Kovash of Hobart. On February 19, 1955, an estimated 500 mourners gathered for memorial services at the mine portal led by Rev. David H. Weed, the pastor of the Black Diamond Presbyterian Church. Photo A lighted cross—a memorial to Harry J. English, Black Diamond miner whose body lies in an accidental grave deep in a coal mine near Ravensdale—was dedicated during a brief service. The miner's widow, Lily, is pictured singing in choir, at extreme right. At left, near the cross, her sons, James English, 16, and Jerry English, 12 (in light suits), stand beside the pastor, the Rev. David H. Weed." (Seattle P-I, April 4, 1954.)
2013	37	3	Summer 2013	The Landsburg Mine Memorial. Story and photo The Landsburg Mine memorial was created after the four miners were lost in that January 29, 1955, disaster. It was impossible to retrieve their bodies as they were buried in water, sand, and gravel. Palmer Coking Coal Co. provided a suitable site which is about 1,000 feet southeast of the actual location where the bodies were lost. When the site was logged by Plum Creek Timber about 30 years ago, they fortunately left a small grove of trees around the memorial which provides a serene setting. If you'd like to visit the site, you need to obtain permission from Palmer Coking Coal Co

2013	37	3	Summer 2013	The legacy of the doll: Frank Bussey's special gift by JoAnne Matsumura. The story of Francis "Frank" Bussey who lost his life in the mines and a doll he bought to be a Christmas present for Dorothy Haag, his granddaughter. The doll is on display at the museum. Frank, a timberman with pillar crew workmates Joe Grill, Charles Heavilin, and Frank Nivone, were working in Mine 11, ½-mile below the surface on the 11th level. Andrew and his brother, Sam Haag, were working next to Frank—in fact the three had just had lunch together. Within minutes of leaving Frank, they heard a crash and just missed death by a whisker themselves, Andrew later told his wife, as he and Sam scrambled to the surface via an air shaft. Andrew sounded the Mine 11 siren and other miners began removing the tons of debris in hopes of finding the trapped miners alive. In time Dorothy married Harry Johnson and remained in Black Diamond. She had one daughter, Carolyn Johnson Christopher, who donated the doll to the museum. Photo of the doll.

2014	38	3	Summer 2014	“Displaced Person’s Song” If you see a train this evening, Far away, against the sky, Lie down in your woolen blanket, Sleep and let the train go by. Trains have called us, every midnight, From a thousand miles away, Trains that pass through empty cities, Trains that have no place to stay. No one drives the locomotive, No one tends the staring light, Trains have never needed riders, Trains belong to bitter night. Railway stations stand deserted, Rights-of-way lie clear and cold, What we left them, trains inherit, Trains go on, and we grow old. Let them cry like cheated lovers, Let their cries find only wind, Trains are meant for night and ruin, And we are meant for song and sin.” — Thomas Pynchon, Gravity’s Rainbow

2014	38	3	Summer 2014	Travel The railroad track is miles away, And the day is loud with voices speaking, Yet there isn’t a train goes by all day But I hear its whistle shrieking. All night there isn’t a train goes by, Though the night is still for sleep and dreaming, But I see its cinders red on the sky, And hear its engine steaming. My heart is warm with the friends I make, And better friends I’ll not be knowing, Yet there isn’t a train I wouldn’t take, No matter where it’s going. by: Edna St. Vincent Millay (1892-1950)
